—A 10-year-old Honesdale youth, fired by the story of the adventures of Wilkes-Barre "millionaire for a day," stole $15 and went to one of the hotels of the town, engaged a room, and prepared to do the millionaire act as long as the cash lasted. When his parents became aware of his action the boy was taken home and given what the Wilkes-Barre "millionaire" ought to have received. While eating his meals from the mantle this youth probably marvels at the injustice of fate which showers glory upon some freak stunt artists while others are forced to suffer the effects of the paternal cyclone.—Scranton Tribune-Republican.

—It does not seem fair to the local merchants to see these street vendors in fruits, green groceries, etc., doing such a big business. We ought to remember that our local men have to live and pay rent and taxes, in fact all their profits are spent here in town to help support the town and its institutions, and we should consider this before spending our money with these outsiders, whose prices are very little, if any, lower and whose goods are always inferior. The local merchants are not getting exorbitant prices as some people seem to think, in fact are barely able to exist at the ruling prices, while these vendors of course can sell a little cheaper because they have no rent or taxes to pay. Patronize home industries and boost your home town.

—Some child or elderly person will be injured before long if bicyclists are allowed to continue to ride on the sidewalks of the town. There is a borough ordinance prohibiting persons to ride on the walks or park paths under a penalty of $1. For the second offence, $2 will be imposed and not less than $5 for each succeeding offence. What is the use of having borough ordinances if they are not enforced? There may be some excuse for riding on the sidewalks sometimes when the roads are impassable, but not every day when the streets are in good condition and free from mud. Riding on the sidewalks with bicycles has become a nuisance and almost every day pedestrians have to dodge some bicycle or be startled behind by a bell or whistle, more often the latter, owing to another violation of the bicycle ordinance that each machine should be equipped with a bell. The public should not be compelled to tolerate this nuisance any longer and if the policemen do their duty there will be no need of calling their attention to it again.

BOY SCOUTS

EDITED BY ONE OF THEM

Say, boys, going to do anything special this summer? If not The Citizen would like to interest you in its fly exterminating campaign.

We have published several articles upon the subject which we hope you have read, or if you have not seen them we can furnish back copies containing them, so that you may become enlightened upon the subject.

As you probably know, The Citizen offers two prizes to the boy or girl bringing the greatest number of dead flies to this office between now and September 1, 1912. The first prize is $10, that sounds good doesn't it? As a second prize we will give $5 to the boy or girl bringing the next largest number of flies.

In entering the contest you do not have to sign any contracts or go through any "red tape." Just kill every fly you see, place it in a box and bring your collection to this office once a week.

You can catch the flies in traps, use poison paper, sulphur fumes or any other means except sticky fly paper to count for the contest. You can form a club and have as many boys to help you as you desire and then "divvy" up after the contest closes.

The flies will be measured, 1,600 flies filling a gill. It would be to your advantage not to drown your flies as wet flies take less space than dry ones. The Agricultural department in Washington recommend this method of counting flies and claim that they average 1,600 to a gill measure.

Now, boys, you can win these prizes if you might. They will be given to some one and why not to members of Honesdale Troop of Boy Scouts. Who will be the first to kill the first gill?

Fly traps can be set in different stores. The merchant, undoubtedly, will be glad to help you and will allow your traps to be set in his store.

Now for that glittering $10 gold piece.
